3. Bike to Work Day

Hundreds of thousands of bicyclists all across the Bay Area celebrated Bike to Work Day 2010 on May 13th. In Richmond, more than 200 bicyclists passed through one of four "Energizer Stations" in the morning to receive free refreshments, a Bike to Work Day bag, and information about commuting by bicycle. The City of Richmond's Richmond Bicycle Pedestrian Advisory Committee, Richmond Spokes, and SunPower coordinated to promote Bike to Work Day and to host Energizer Stations under the leadership of the East Bay Bicycle Coalition, whose mission is to promote bicycling as an everyday means of transportation. Stations were located on the Ohlone Greenway at San Pablo Avenue and MacDonald Avenue, Richmond BART, Bay Trail at Marina Bay Park, and Ohlone Greenway at 15th Street. Throughout the East Bay, bicycling counts on Bike to Work Day were up 10% over 2009! View <http://ebbc.org/btwd> for more information about Bike to Work Day.

The City of Richmond thanks this year's Energizer Station sponsors, which include Catahoula Coffee, Clif Bar, Costco, East Bay Regional Parks, Fehr and Peers, Mountain Hardwear, National Parks Service, The Pedaler, Safeway, SunPower and World Centric.
